The mid-county area of Contra Costa County is growing rapidly. This area has never been well defined in terms of either city or special district boundaries. Many of its assets and many of its problems have been found to be directly related to the entire San Francisco Bay area. The recent growth of regional agencies reflects an awareness of this fact. So, too, do the issues of consolidation of districts, incorporation of cities, and the many struggles over land use reflect a need for better planning and the best use of available resources. With a future of continuing change in view, this book is dedicated to the residents of the area.

COUNTY HISTORY AND CURRENT STATISTICS

Indians living near Wildcat Creek saw the first European explorers of inland Contra Costa in 1772. Pedro Fages, who was seeking a land route around San Francisco Bay to Pt. Reyes, camped near Martinez and Antioch. These Spanish explorers were the first non-Indians to see the Delta and the distant Sierra Nevada range. On their return to Monterey the party spent a night in the San Ramon Valley where they noted many more Indian villages.

Don Francisco Maria Castro was the first non-Indian to be a permanent resident in the area of present day Contra Costa. Retiring from Spanish service with a land grant, he moved with his family to Rancho San Pablo in 1826. Don Ignacio Martinez moved to Rancho El Pinole in 1836. Portions of the south county area called Rancho San Ramon were granted in 1833, to Bartolome Pacheco and Mariano Castro, and in 1834, to Jose Maria Amador. That same year the area north of Mt. Diablo along the waterfront and called Ranchos Los Medanos was granted to Jose Noriega, who sold it three years later to Dr. John Marsh. Marsh was the first Yankee to settle in Contra Costa. He hosted the John Bidwell party in 1841, when it concluded the first overland trip from the United States.

Earlier, in 1834, Don Salvio Pacheco was granted the Rancho Monte del Diablo, covering the Concord area, and Juana Sanchez de Pacheco received the Rancho Arroyo de las Nueces y Bolbones (also known as San Miguel) covering Walnut Creek. Cousins Joaquin Moraga and Juan Bernal, third generation Californios, received the grant in 1835, for Rancho Laguna de los Palos Colorados. The lake was on the site of present day Campolindo High School. Rancho El Sobrante de San Ramon, southwest of Walnut Creek, was given to the Romero brothers in 1846. Rancho Acalanes, west of Lafayette, was granted to Candalero Valencia in 1834. Soon many of these lands passed into American hands through both honest and unscrupulous means.

Contra Costa was one of the original 27 counties established by the Legislature on February 18, 1850. In 1853, the southern portion was detached so as to be included in Alameda County, leaving an area of 734 square miles with some 70 miles of shoreline on bays and on the San Joaquin River. Martinez, founded in 1849, was and is the county seat.

For half a century the county was primarily agricultural, specializing in grain production and in the raising of fruit and nuts. Port Costa was at one time the largest port in the world used for exporting grain. Grain was sent down the San Joaquin and Sacramento Rivers and was loaded onto ocean-going vessels at Port Costa. Martinez and Pittsburg had some importance as fishing villages, and after 1855, there was mining of soft coal in Nortonville and Somersville, near Pittsburg.

Industrial development was attracted by the central location of the county, by the availability of water transport on bay and river, and by the coming of the railroad in 1876. Since then the development of bridges and highways has added to the transportation network. Pittsburg has been an industrial town since the turn of the century, and there has been increasing industrial development, especially in the towns along the water. Steel, chemicals, paper, oil refining, and canning all contribute to making Contra Costa the fifth ranking county in the state in manufacturing payrolls. Light industry and parts production have developed in the inland areas.

The completion of the Caldecott Tunnel in 1937, and the end of World War II stimulated the residential development of central Contra Costa County. Population has grown from 78,608 in 1930, to 298,984 in 1950, and the official 1960 census showed 409,030. The California State Department of Finance has estimated a Contra Costa County population at 550,800 as of July 1, 1968, of which approximately 300,000 were in the central county area. Suburban areas have gradually incorporated, so that about three-fifths of the population of the county live in incorporated cities. The rest of the population is in unincorporated areas and is therefore more directly dependent on the county government and special districts.

Contra Costa County consists of three main areas: the area on the bay, including Richmond, Pinole, El Cerrito, San Pablo, Hercules, El Sobrante, and Kensington; the central area, including the cities of Clayton, Concord, Lafayette, Martinez, Pleasant Hill, and Walnut Creek and the unincorporated towns of Alamo, Cowell, Danville, Diablo, Moraga, Pacheco, Orinda, Rheem, and San Ramon; and the eastern area, including Antioch, Brentwood and Pittsburg.

Before World War II, county government provided traditional basic services: property records, vital statistics, elections, courts and protection, care of the needy ill, property assessment, and tax collection. With the post-war population explosion, it has become necessary to provide building inspection, civil defense, pollution control, traffic engineering, mental health services, veterans' counseling, child welfare services, medical care for welfare recipients, care of premature infants, management of the county airport, long-range planning for growth and development, and most recently, the Office of Economic Opportunity.

COUNTY GOVERNMENTAL STRUCTURE, AGENCIES, DEPARTMENTS

Contra Costa is a general law county, as are four-fifths of the counties in California. General law counties are those which do not have a charter and which operate under the organization and structure established by the State Legislature. The Legislature sets the salaries of the Board of Supervisors, Auditor, District Attorney, Superintendent of Schools, grand jurors, trial jurors, and the judges of the Superior and municipal courts. All other salaries are determined by the County Board of Supervisors.

The county is divided into five supervisorial districts, which were realigned as of January 1, 1965, to more nearly equalize population. All districts run on a north-south axis, each with waterways, industry, urban and suburban areas, etc., although the principal agricultural area lies in the 5th district to the east. This booklet is primarily concerned with Districts 3 and 4.

County services include public welfare, probation, medical care for the needy, public health and sanitation, and the Superior, municipal, and justice court system. For those in unincorporated areas the county services also include planning, road construction and maintenance, building inspection, and police service.

Most county offices, except for Agriculture, are reached through the central switchboard in Martinez at 228-3000 and are in the Main Administration Building. For details and addresses of specific departments, see the "Directory" section; also check the telephone book under "Contra Costa County".

AGRICULTURAL EXTENSION SERVICE

The Farm Advisor Program of the Agricultural Extension Service of the University of California is financed by State and Federal funds, with office space and clerical assistance provided by the county. It provides educational and advisory services in farm and home management, including suburban gardens, through the Farm Bureau, Home Department, and 4-H Clubs.

ASSESSOR

The Assessor is elected for a four-year term. He appraises residential, commercial, industrial, and agricultural property for tax purposes. He submits the annual assessment roll to the Board of Supervisors at the beginning of the fiscal year. Taxpayers may protest their valuations in July when the Board of Supervisors sits as the County Board of Equalization. Properties in the county owned by private utilities are assessed by the State Board of Equalization.

AUDITOR-CONTROLLER

The Auditor-Controller is elected for a four-year term and must be either a certified or a licensed public accountant. He is the chief fiscal officer of the county and of special districts. He is responsible for auditing and accounting, for the legality of payment orders on the county treasury, for data processing, and for centralized purchasing.

BOARD OF ELECTIONS

The Board of Supervisors, ex officio, fulfills election duties as set by state law.

BOARD OF SUPERVISORS

The five members of the Board are elected for four-year terms, which are staggered. Each supervisor must reside in the district which he represents. Vacancies arising during the term are filled by appointment by the Governor of California. The duties of the Board are prescribed by the State Legislature; consisting of legislative, administrative, and quasi-judicial. Legislative action includes ordinances, resolutions, and orders. Administrative activity is carried on through the appointment of a County Administrator who is responsible to the Board. The presiding judge of the Superior Court appoints one member to be foreman, and the District Attorney acts as legal adviser. Their investigative duties extend to public persons, public officers charged with misconduct, persons held on criminal charges and not yet indicted (a vote of 12 out of 19 will indict), records of all county offices, salary needs of County Supervisors, District Attorney, and Auditor, and the need for improvement in all offices. Their report is filed with the Presiding Judge at the end of the term and is filed as a public record with the County Clerk.

A decision of the justice court may be appealed to a judge of the Superior Court.

Until recently the Coroner was elected for a four-year term and had four civil servant assistants. However, upon the death of the last coroner, his responsibilities became the duties of the sheriff's office. Morticians of the county serve as deputy coroners for fees. All violent deaths and deaths for which no attending physician can certify cause are investigated. The sheriff's office will now subpoena witnesses, order autopsies, bind over witnesses to a murder or manslaughter to the Grand Jury or to the Superior Court, and may issue a warrant to arrest a suspect.

He also directs the special schools for the mentally retarded, the physically and emotionally handicapped, and the probation connected schools for dependent children and juvenile delinquents. All of these are financed by the County School Service Tax.

SUPERIOR COURT

The Superior Court presently has nine departments, which are headed by judges who are elected for staggered, six-year terms. Vacancies are filled by appointment of the Governor. Salaries, which are set by State Legislature, are shared by State and County. The judges elect a presiding judge each year. It is his duty to assign the divisions and to appoint the Grand Jury. The designated Juvenile Judge appoints the Probation Officer. The Superior Court administers justice in all civil cases involving more than $5,000 and all equity, probate, insanity, juvenile, and felony cases. As the highest county court, it is the chief trial court in the California judiciary system. It also hears appeals from the municipal and justice courts. Appeals from the decisions of the Superior Court go to the District Appellate Court and then to the State Supreme Court.

SPECIAL DISTRICTS

A special district is a taxing jurisdiction formed by or for local or area residents to provide a particular service or services within a defined area. Many of these services are not provided by existing governments in those localities or the level of service provided has been found to be inadequate. Some districts are small and provide local service such as street lighting or sweeping in the San Ramon Valley and Orinda. Other districts roughly follow city boundaries and provide parks and recreation as in Pleasant Hill. Some cover quite large areas -- schools and flood control are two examples. Finally, there are the regional districts which cover large portions of the Bay Area.

Apart from size, special districts fall into four general categories: county service areas, special districts administered and governed by the county, independent special districts governed by their own boards, and regional agencies.

County service areas are an extension of county services for those areas where an additional service or services is needed. A special tax is levied for the service and the service area is administered by the county. About 32 such service areas exist within the county, and in this area include street lighting, street sweeping, library construction and other services.

Special districts administered by the county differ from service areas in that a board of commissioners is usually appointed by the Board of Supervisors for each district to administer that district. Included in this group are fire protection, flood control, water conservation and the water agency.

Independent or autonomous special districts are those governed by an appointed or elected board. The functions of these districts include sewage disposal, recreation, fire protection, and hospital facilities.

Regional agencies are usually governed by boards which are selected in a variety of ways, depending on their enabling statutes. They are frequently appointed by elected city and/or county officials within the boundaries of the particular agency. They are covered in a separate section of this book. (Page 14)

There are hundreds of possible combinations of overlapping districts within this county. See the community listings for a guide to your area. You may obtain a specific list of the districts, their tax rates and the total tax bill for your residence by contacting the Office of the County Treasurer—Tax Collector.

COUNTY SPECIAL DISTRICTS

Alamo-Lafayette Cemetery

This district was formed in April, 1937, with a three member commission appointed by the Board of Supervisors. The Superintendent is Mr. Harold Bennett, and he is assisted by two men. All three employees are union members who do all the work including gardening, road building, welding, plumbing, landscaping, deed and transfer work. The two cemeteries which comprise this 49,413 acre district are on Mt. Diablo Boulevard in Lafayette and El Portal in Alamo. The average grave cost is $125.00. There is room for 5,685 more graves in Lafayette, with nearly 400 reserved grave lots, approximately 85 available sites in Alamo, with nearly 300 lots reserved.

FIRE PROTECTION

In the larger fire districts the chief and all employees are obtained through the County Civil Service program.

Briones Fire District. This volunteer fire district serves the area from Pinole to Briones and from Upper Happy Valley to Bear Creek Road and Alhambra Road. Chief: Frank Nunes. Equipment: 2 pieces. The commissions control the fixed expenses of the Fire Department, the Supervisors retain major financial control. The district controls open burning, provides a fire marshall in charge of fire prevention to work with the community. The Tilden and Water Project areas maintain their own fire departments but are responsible to the Orinda Fire Department. Other services include an ambulance, emergency water and electrical problems.

FLOOD CONTROL

This is a county-wide district established in 1952, and now employing over 50 people. It provides flood control planning, design, construction and maintenance of major and secondary creeks. Zones are based on watershed boundaries. All new subdivisions must meet county standards for drainage. The district may establish storm drainage zones upon the request of citizens in particular areas. In certain areas where additional facilities are needed an additional tax may be imposed.

MOSQUITO ABATEMENT

Operating under a 1915 act of the State Legislature, the Governing Board is composed of a representative of each incorporated city within the district, appointed by the respective city councils, and a representative of the unincorporated areas appointed by the Board of Supervisors. The board meets quarterly, and appoints a District Manager to carry out its programs of insect control and public education. Principal functions of the district include area-wide control of mosquitoes and other insects with potential health hazard; a consulting program to enable private citizens, industry, agriculture, etc., to control insect pests; and a program of public education designed to minimize health hazards.

ORINDA VEHICLE PARKING

The Board of Supervisors appoints a three man commission for the district which has the power to levy a tax of $.05 per $100.00 assessed valuation on property in the business district to provide improved parking facilities in this area. The commission has not met in four years and has never levied a tax. However, the Board of Supervisors has allowed the district to remain in effect indefinitely due to the unresolved problems surrounding the BART construction. It is anticipated that this district will be dissolved.

SANITATION DISTRICTS NUMBERS 1 AND 2

These provide sanitary sewer facilities, with plants operated by the Public Works Department.

STORM DRAINAGE

When Pleasant Hill incorporated in 1961, the district dissolved and its functions became the legal responsibility of the city. An advisory committee of Gregory Gardens residents recommends operational policies to the city council. Taxes meet the original cost of the water system; improvements and operating costs are met by income from metered services. No city funds are used. Fluoridated water is provided.

San Ramon Valley, San Miguel Estates, and Walnut County Water. These districts were originally formed to purchase and install a water distribution system. The water services are now provided by E.B.M.U.D. Each district has its own governing board, but continues to exist only to retire bonds.

FIRE PROTECTION

Each district is controlled by five elected directors serving four-year terms. They meet not less than once a month to determine financial and personnel policies, decide upon equipment and maintenance and to plan future improvement. All districts are members of the County "Outside Aid Agreement" and render mutual aid to each other as needed in emergency occurrences.

The hospital provides emergency services and general hospitalization. Charges are made to the patient. Parts of Orinda are within this district. There is a general plan of development and expansion over the next ten years. The board meets every third Thursday of the month.

Concord Hospital District (Concord Community Hospital). The hospital serves the city of Concord and its peripheral communities. The five man board of directors are elected for four-year terms from among the registered voters within the hospital district. Capital expenditures are met from district taxes, whereas operating expenses and new equipment come from daily revenues, including Medicare and Medi-Cal patients. Services in 1968 include 189 hospital beds, emergency room service, obstetrics, a cobalt treatment center to be completed by mid 1969, five surgeries, inhalation and physio-therapy departments.

Pittsburg Community Hospital District. The five man board of directors is not paid. They serve four-year terms, meeting the fourth Thursday of the month at the hospital. The hospital has 78 beds and provides both general hospital care and emergency services, and includes facilities for physical therapy, X-rays and laboratory.

SANITARY DISTRICTS

Central Contra Costa. Formed in 1946, and expanded to include the area between Lime Ridge (Kirker Pass) and the Alameda County Line. The tax rate, which is steadily decreasing, pays the operating costs and retires outstanding debts. Capitalization is financed through annexation, connection and service fees. The governing board consists of five persons, elected at large for four-year overlapping terms. They are paid a small fee for each meeting. The board appoints a General Manager-Engineer who must be a civil engineer. He in turn hires employees (currently about 90) through the county Civil Service. Services include maintenance of about 600 miles of sewers, planning, building and assessing new sewers, control of subdivision sewer installations, and checking septic tank requests. The district maintains a primary treatment plan with a deep water outfall in Suisun Bay. In addition the district grants a franchise for garbage collection to five contractors: Valley Disposal, Orinda, Lafayette, Diablo and Pleasant Hill-Bayshore.

Mt. View Sanitary District. Until recently the city of Martinez maintained its own sewage treatment plant. However in 1968, the district became part of the Central Sanitary District.

The district conducts afternoon playground programs at all elementary and intermediate schools. Some of the many special activities include: excursions, Jr. Teens, sports of many kinds, pre-school, arts and crafts, sewing, cake decorating, bridge, folk dancing, Yoga, Senior Citizens, church leagues and adult leagues.

SCHOOLS

All school districts are governed by an unpaid school board, usually of five members, who are elected for overlapping four-year terms. The board selects a superintendent and also exercises general administrative powers. It determines educational policy within the framework set by the state and is responsible for the financing of the program and for building. Meetings are open to the public (except for executive sessions held to discuss personnel problems). In general, a higher than average expenditure per pupil indicates an expanded and superior program; the state-wide average expenditure per pupil in high school districts is $712.00, and in unified districts is $586.00. All of our local high schools provide adult education, open to anyone over age 18.

Mt. Diablo Unified School District. Board meetings are held the second and fourth Tuesday of each month.

The district serves 48,242 students in 38 elementary schools (K-6), 8 intermediate schools (7 and 8), and 7 high schools. There are approximately 1,700 teachers. This district includes the cities of Concord, Clayton, Pleasant Hill, Pittsburg, parts of Walnut Creek, and unincorporated areas between these cities.

The school facilities are generally considered adequate, although there are some split sessions, some temporary buildings, some rented facilities and the libraries do not always have adequate books. Transportation is provided by a fleet of district-owned busses in accordance with the reimbursement limits set by the state.

In the intermediate and high schools vocations programs are available for both boys and girls and will continue to be expanded; greatest stress is on college preparation courses. The district has an outstanding program for the handicapped child: aurally, visually, educationally or orthopedically handicapped; for educable mentally retarded and severely mentally retarded; provides speech correction; home instruction is available. It also provides psychologists to diagnose learning and behavior problems, to test individuals and to interpret the findings, to assist in curriculum development, and to screen the handicapped. The district provides coordinated counseling through all levels.

The district also maintains these additional facilities: Shadelands, a school for the orthopedically handicapped, Pinehaven, a school for trainable mentally retarded; and Olympic High School, a continuation high school for students under 18 who are unable to utilize and participate in a full-time high school program and who are therefore ineligible to attend adult high school.

Established in 1948, the district now has two colleges; Contra Costa College, located in San Pablo and Richmond, and Diablo Valley College, located in Pleasant Hill. Contra Costa College has about 3,800 full-time students, while Diablo Valley College has about 6,400 full-time students. Both colleges have part-time and night school enrollments which are approximately two-thirds the size of the daytime enrollment. There are approximately 300 teachers in the district.

The district is governed by a five member board elected to four-year overlapping terms from five wards. Members are unpaid and meet once a month. The Board appoints a superintendent who is the chief administrative and executive officer and acts as professional policy advisor to the board. Each college also has a president who aids in planning and development of the program and the organization of the college, in staff selection and in development.

The total expenditure for 1967-68 was $10,334,720, including $522,735 for community service and $1,546,460 for capital outlay. The cost per student was $802.00. The school operating dollar was spent on instruction including all salaries (77%), administration (3%), operation and maintenance (17%), fixed charges (8%), transportation and health services (1%).

College level instruction is offered in liberal arts, business, semi-professional and trade-technical fields. Any high school graduate or anyone over 18 who can profit from instruction may enroll. The colleges also offer forums, lectures, music, drama and arts programs to the public. Tuition is not charged to residents of the district.

COUNTY SCHOOL OFFICES

Act to coordinate the educational program among districts, provide direct professional assistance required by state law to districts which because of size and not able to furnish a satisfactory program (such as Canyon Elementary). See page 5, County Board of Education, page 10, Superintendent of Schools.

The County Board of Education also supervises the county-wide programs for the Education of Children in Institutions, the Regional Occupational Centers, Development Centers for Handicapped, and the Education for Severely Mentally Retarded. (Mt. Diablo provides its own service.)

INCORPORATED CITIES

General law cities are incorporated under California State Law and State Constitution. Their governments must all follow a prescribed pattern. Charter cities have adopted their own form of government in accordance with special provisions of the State Constitution. All of the cities discussed here are general law cities.

CLAYTON

Clayton was named for its founder, Joel Clayton, who in 1856, discovered and worked in the Black Diamond Mines at the foot of Mt. Diablo. The town of Clayton played an important role in the development of the coal industry in the area. At the height of Clayton's prosperity, about 1886, there were approximately 900 inhabitants, the town being one of the county's largest. Clayton became the drinking and entertainment center for the coal miners from the neighboring towns of Nortonville and Sommerville. When the mines shut down, Clayton did not collapse, but became more peaceful and has been called "the town too beautiful to die". In addition to the prosperous mines, the land was extremely fertile, being particularly suited to grapes. In 1885, Paul De Martini built a large winery near Clayton which flourished until prohibition. The winery building still stands. Another prominent early settler in the area was John Marsh, California's first doctor, who bought a ranch at the foot of Mt. Diablo in 1836.

Clayton today has a distinct rural-residential atmosphere. The terrain of rolling hills and valleys alongside orchards and wooded mountains makes the area one of great beauty. In March of 1964, the residents voted by a 4 to 1 majority to incorporated. The original incorporated area encompassed 1/2 square mile and has grown by annexation to almost 3/4 square mile. The population as of July 1968, was 1,296. The County Planning Commission estimates a 1990 census of 35,000 to 40,000. There is no industry within the city, and the only business buildings are a restaurant, store, bar, the post office, and craft and antique shops.

Because of the rapid growth of the entire Clayton Valley, planning the area's future development is of prime concern to its residents. The master plan includes not only the city of Clayton but also the lands around it which come under its sphere of influence. The general philosophy is one of maintaining the rural atmosphere with lot sizes a minimum of 12,000 square feet, going up to five acres. The existing creek beds and riding paths are to remain.

CITY OFFICES

City offices are at Diablo and Main Streets, P.O. Box 268, Clayton; Telephone 689-3622. These and the town hall are rented.

The major expenditure is for police protection, the second largest is for planning. Clayton's tax rate was 93.2 cents per $100.00 assessed valuation in 1968. In addition to the city taxes, revenue sources are the state gasoline taxes, sales tax, liquor licenses, motor vehicle taxes, and local business licenses. The books are annually audited by an outside firm.

Clayton contracts for sewer and police protection from the city of Concord.

ELECTED OFFICIALS

Clayton is a general law city with five elected council members, one of whom is elected Mayor. The council meets on the first and third Wednesday evening of each month at Clayton Community Hall, Oak and Center Streets.

The City Clerk is appointed by the council and serves on a part-time basis. The City Attorney is also appointed part-time. The City Treasurer is appointed and receives no salary.

The Planning Commission of seven members meets the second Tuesday and the fourth Monday of each month at Clayton Community Hall at 8:00 p.m. A professional planning consultant is retained by the city.

Citizens' advisory boards or commissions are formed as needed. They include the Underground Conversion Committee, Contra Costa County Highway Advisory Committee, Contra Costa County Land Use and Mass Transportation Committee, League of California Cities, ABAG, Public Works Committee, Mt. Diablo Seal Creek Watershed Project.

CONCORD

The original Spanish grant of 17,900 acres, which was the beginning of Concord, has grown to be the largest city in the county. Pittsburg, Pacheco, Pleasant Hill, Walnut Creek and Clayton now form the boundaries of the city.

Lying in the shadow of Mt. Diablo, the city's rolling hills and vast stretches of flatlands, once devoted to cattle grazing, wheat, fruit and vegetables, have become great residential areas and a booming light industrial complex. A Master Plan, adopted in 1958, and continuously updated, provides for growth in an orderly manner to insure that the city will expand and prosper with a plan and a purpose.

In 1834, Spanish Governor Figueroa awarded a land grant to Don Salvio Pacheco, who named his property Rancho Monte del Diablo and used it as a cattle ranch. On this site the town of Concord was founded in 1868, and was known as Todos Santos (All Saints) for a brief period of time. Salvio Pacheco's adobe home still stands and is now a prominent restaurant. His son, Fernando, built his home on a 1,500 acre tract, a gift from Salvio. This building has been restored and presently is used by the Contra Costa County Horseman's Association. Both structures have been designated as State Historical Landmarks.

Fiestas and fetes were part of the colorful history of Concord. They were held in the Plaza, the heart of the old town. This spirit has continued with such festivals as the Pow Wow and Black Bart Days, bringing enthusiastic crowds to the parades, carnivals and other activities.

Incorporated in 1905, the city remained rural and remote, with but a small increase in population. Then came expansion after World War II. From a population in 1950 of 7,000 Concord has grown to a present population of 85,000. More than half the population is under the age of 21.

The average household income in 1968 was $9,783. Eighty-six percent of the population live in single residential dwellings (75% of whom own their own homes), and the remainder live in multiple housing units with a very small percentage in attractive trailer parks.

Concord is not an industrial city but does have several highly developed commercial centers devoted to retailing. The city also has zoned many acres for industrial parks, the electronics industry being a prominent part of the commercial picture. The U. S. Navy is the single largest employer with the Naval Weapons Station located within the city.

CITY OFFICES

City offices are located at the Civic Center, 1950 Parkside Avenue; Telephone 682-6600.

ELECTED OFFICIALS

In 1953, Concord changed its status from a mayor-council to a council-city manager form of government. The Council is composed of five councilmen elected at large on a non-partisan basis for four-year terms. They select one member to act as Mayor. They serve on a part-time basis for a salary of $300.00 per month.

The Council is responsible for policy and general control of the administration and appoints the City Manager who is responsible for carrying out that policy through administration of all city departments. Further duties of the Council are to approve the budget, levy taxes, enact local ordinances and appoint private citizens to various commissions and boards.

There are only two other elective officials: the City Clerk and the City Treasurer.

APPOINTED OFFICIALS AND COMMISSIONS

The Council appoints the City Manager, City Attorney, and members of the Personnel Board, Building Appeals Board, Park and Recreation Advisory Commission, and Planning Commission. Members of the Safety Commission serve by virtue of the office they hold in government, as stipulated by city ordinance. The most recent addition to the city is a Youth Commission, with a Board soon to be appointed. The Council is currently considering the possibility of a Human Relations Advisory Committee and a Cultural Commission.

Concord operates under a merit system for its 290 employees. Salary scales are set annually, with both the City Manager and the Personnel Board acting in an advisory capacity to the Council. The Personnel Board advises the Council on the administration of the merit system and acts as an appeals board for civil service employees.

LAFAYETTE

Lafayette, a recently incorporated city situated on a former Mexican land grant, encompasses about 15 square miles with the sole business district located along a two-mile length of Mt. Diablo Boulevard. Primarily a bedroom community, homes are located on the rolling hills and along the streamlined valleys next to fruit orchards and grazing land.

In 1847, Elam Brown purchased the Acalanes Grant consisting of 3,328 acres and 300 head of cattle. In 1857, Lafayette became a town; but not until after 1937, when the Caldecott Tunnel was completed, did the population increase rapidly. Currently, the population numbers over 30,000 and is expected to increase to between 40,000 to 50,000 by 1975.

Housing, usually on 1/4-acre lots or larger, ranges from $20,000 to $60,000 and higher. Most residents live in family groups with some single adults living in apartments and duplexes. The median income in 1966, was $11,500, which is substantially higher than the national average of $6,000.

There is no industry in the area nor are there any plans in this direction. Therefore, most of the employed sector of the population commutes to jobs in other cities and communities.

The Lafayette Design Project, and Lafayette Improvement Association, and the Chamber of Commerce influence civic decisions by holding forums, "town meetings", and drives. There are also many organizations serving the business community, youth, and women, as well as special hobby and sport activities.

CITY OFFICES

Lafayette City Office - 3450 "C" Golden Gate Way, Lafayette, California, 94549; Telephone 284-1968.

Lafayette became an incorporated general law city in July, 1968, by vote of the area residents in a special election. With a Council-Manager form of government, the Council serves as a legislative and policy-making body and a staff headed by a City Manager carries out the directives and enforces the ordinances.

The city has assumed responsibility for its administration, planning and land use, business licensing, sign control, and building and parking regulations. During the first fiscal year of a city's life, state law provides that the county shall continue to furnish the services to the area that were in effect prior to incorporation. Police protection, street and road maintenance and construction, engineering and traffic engineering, building inspection and planning consultation are provided until June 30, 1969, under this provision. As the city wanted increased police protection, an additional patrolman was secured by contract from the county.

After the first year these services are provided by a choice of four alternatives or any combination of these: the city itself may furnish the service; the city may contract the service from the county, or a neighboring city; the city may contract the service from a private firm, individual; or establish a special district. Continuing county responsibilities are public health and welfare, judicial, library and animal control services. Special districts provide and finance water, sewage, fire protection, education, regional parks, street lighting, street sweeping and landscape maintenance, and flood control. The specific districts serving the area are listed at the end of this section.

City financing is met by state subventions such as the sales tax, motor vehicle in-lieu tax, gasoline and cigarette taxes. There is no city property tax to meet city expenses. This could be changed in the future if the residents demand increased services which could not be financed from the present sources of income.

ELECTED OFFICIALS

As a California general law city, five council members are elected at large on a non-partisan basis. The length of term is four years with election for the council seats taking place every two years on a rotating system. This is a part-time position for which no salary is received but reimbursement is made for expenses incurred on city business. The Council elects a mayor and vice-mayor from its membership for a one year period.

Regular meetings of the City Council are held the first and fourth Wednesdays of each month at 7:30 p.m., in the Board Room of the Lafayette Elementary School District office, 3477 School Street, Lafayette.

APPOINTED OFFICIALS AND COMMISSIONS

All other city officials are selected by appointment by the Council rather than election, although this could be altered later.

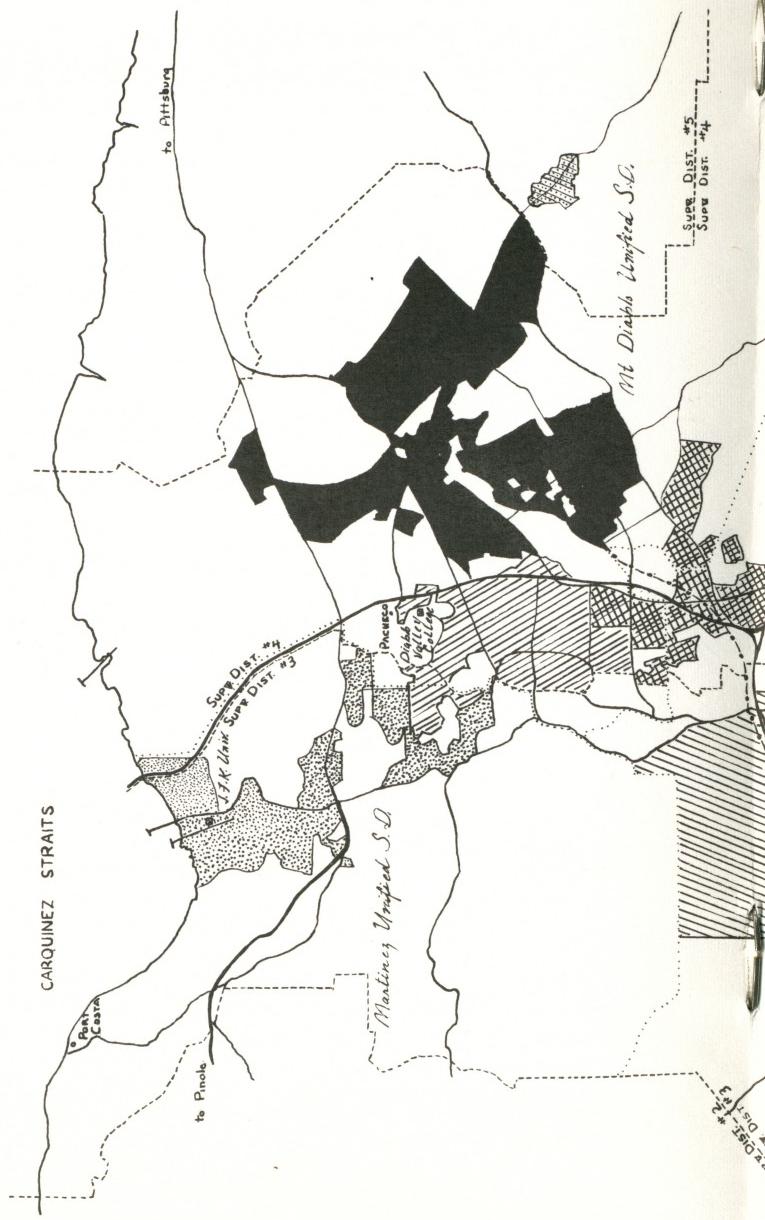

The City Manager is chosen for his administrative and executive ability and remains in office until he resigns or is discharged by the City Council. For his full time employment he receives a salary determined by Council and is reimbursed for working expenses. He is directly responsible to the Council for work of departments, personnel management, budget planning and control, purchasing and property management. He also administers any contracts for services the city has with the county. He can recommend to Council for adoption measures and ordinances he considers necessary. The City Attorney is the only city employee not under his supervision.

City Clerk is a part-time position with the salary established by Council. The clerk is responsible for all official records.

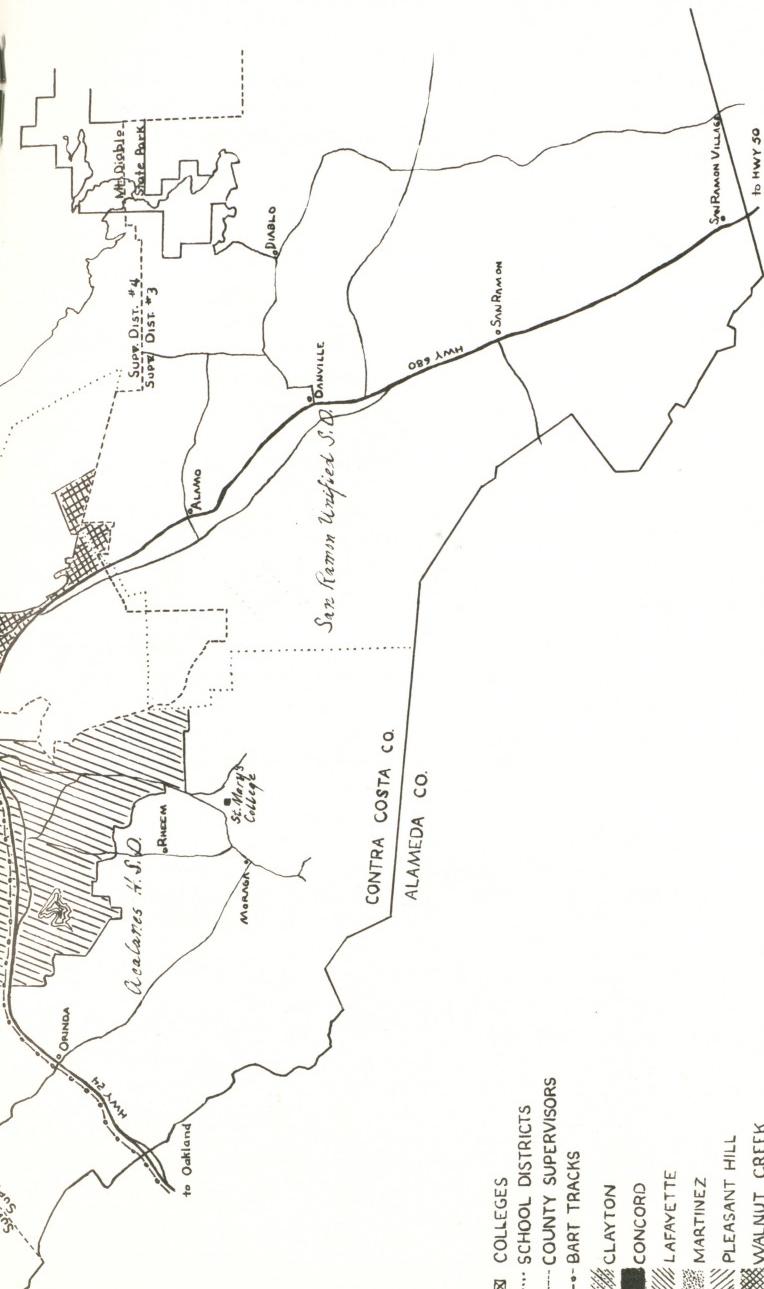

City Attorney: Drafts ordinances, gives Council and other officials legal advice and represents the city in litigation. This is a part-time position with the salary determined by the City Council.

City Treasurer: This position rotates each year among the managers of the four banks where the city's funds are deposited. There is no cost to the Other Officials: During the city's first fiscal year Council has designated the County Sheriff as the ex-officio Chief of Police, and the heads of the county departments of Public Works, Building Inspection, and Planning as acting city officials. This practice will probably continue until the city chooses to establish similar city departments.

The Planning Commission established by Council as required by state law is a permanent commission that can make its own decisions without Council approval. It advises the Council on planning matters. It is responsible for a master plan, may propose zoning ordinances, and grant variances. The seven members, who must be qualified electors of the city, are appointed by Council to serve two-year terms. They receive no compensation. The Commission meets on the second and fourth Thursday of each month at 7:30 p.m. at Stanley School, Lafayette.

Several advisory commissions were created by Council to study specific subjects and to recommend regulations pertaining to these subjects. They have six or seven members appointed by Council to serve for an indefinite period and receive no compensation. They are: Sign Ordinance Study Commission, Bay Area Rapid Transit Study Commission, Tree Ordinance Study Commission, Citizens Advisory Committee to Study Legislation Regulating Firearms and Dangerous Weapons, Walkway Policy Advisory Commission, and the Fire Protection Study Commission. The last one recommended that Lafayette should annex to the Contra Costa Consolidated Fire District for fire protection rather than remain the Lafayette Fire District. Council approved this recommendation and the annexation has been completed.

MARTINEZ

The city of Martinez, the county seat of Contra Costa County, is located at the northern end of Diablo Valley, characterized by many picturesque hills and fronts on the Carquinez Strait. By a system of bridges and freeways, it is linked to San Francisco, 32 miles westerly, and Berkeley and Oakland, 25 miles westerly.

Martinez was first settled in 1823, by Ignacio Martinez and Francisco Castro, who had received land grants from Spain in the San Pablo Rancho and the Pinole grant. It was founded as a town in 1849, by Colonel William Smith, as agent for the Martinez family.

Martinez was first incorporated as a city on February 8, 1851; but the incorporation was void, as the law under which it sought to be incorporated was declared unconstitutional by the California Supreme Court. It was finally incorporated in 1876. It was made the county seat of Contra Costa County in 1851. It is the home of the Contra Costa County Hospital, founded in 1890.

Population in 1967 was 13,500. It is a highly industrialized city, with Shell Oil, Shell Chemical, Tidewater Oil, and Mountain Copper Company being the major manufacturers. The city plans to develop the waterfront property surrounding the recently opened marina. The main lines of both the Southern Pacific and the Santa Fe Railroads run through the city, and limited public transportation is provided by Greyhound Bus and County Transit Lines, Inc. The city currently has a small downtown shopping area. Its residents make many purchases at the large shopping centers in the Diablo Valley area.

Martinez is a general law city. It operates under the council-manager form of city government.

CITY OFFICES

The city offices of Martinez are located at 525 Henrietta; Telephone 228-4400.

ELECTED OFFICIALS

The City Council, composed of five councilmen elected at large for overlapping four-year terms, has administrative and policy-making responsibility. It elects one of its members to serve as mayor. The mayor has no veto power. Councilmen receive salaries for their services.

The City Treasurer and the City Clerk are elected for four-year terms.

APPOINTED OFFICIALS AND COMMISSIONS

The City Manager, who heads the administrative branch of the city government is appointed by the Council and is responsible to it.

Director of Public Works. The Public Works Department is responsible for engineering, water treatment and distribution, street maintenance, storm drains, and building inspection.

Police Chief. The police staff includes one lieutenant, three sergeants and fourteen officers.

Other appointed officials are the City Attorney, the Director of Finance, the Director of Planning, and the Director of Parks and Recreation.

All of the above administrative directors except the City Attorney are appointed by the City Manager with the approval of the Council for indefinite terms, according to their individual contracts, with salaries set by the Council. Employees in the departments are selected by civil service procedures.

In addition to appointed administrative directors, the following commissions are also appointed by the Council:

The Citizens Advisory Committee works with the Planning Department and the Building Division of Public Works. This committee is required under Federal law in order that Federal funds can be obtained for special projects.

The Appeals Board is a review board for interpretation of the building codes.

The Civil Service Commission approves civil service examinations, makes salary recommendations, sets new job categories, and hears individual grievances.

The Human Resources Commission is concerned with minority groups and anti-poverty programs.

The Parking Place Commission oversees the use of downtown parking lots in the Municipal Parking District No. 1, and any additional lots that may be acquired in the future.

The Planning Commission advises the Council on the general plan, on design, and makes decisions on zoning, use permits, and land use variances.

The Park and Recreation Commission consists of seven members, three appointed by the Council, three by the School Board, and one selected by the other six members.

SERVICES: CITY DEPARTMENTS AND UTILITIES

Water -- The city owns and operates its own water filtration plant and distribution system. Water is obtained from the San Joaquin River via Contra Costa Canal and supplied to the city of Martinez and to the surrounding developments of Muir Oaks, Mountain View, Muir Meadows, and other contiguous areas.

Sewage -- Martinez has long had its own sewage treatment plant. Effluent from the plant is discharged into Carquinez Strait near the shore. The plant is no longer adequate, and in order to meet state standards the city joined with Central Sanitary District and became part of the larger Diablo Valley sewage system.

Waste Disposal -- Garbage is collected by the Martinez Sanitary Service, a private company. With its weekly pickup it collects, at no extra charge, garden clippings and prunings left in containers in front of the house.

Parks -- Playgrounds, picnic areas, tennis courts, and volley ball are offered at Martinez parks. There are three small parks: Susana Street Park (1 acre), Brown Street Park (3/4 acre), and Nancy Boyd Park (4-1/2 acres). The Martinez Municipal Park has 41 acres, including picnic areas, swimming pool, a Storybook Fairyland for children, and a lighted softball field. A Shoreline Park, 4-1/2 acres of waterfront playfields, has been developed near the Marina. Recently property was acquired south of John Muir Parkway, and more sites are planned.

Recreation -- The Martinez Recreation Department has a year-round program for all ages, including golf, tennis, tap dancing, tumbling, kick-ball, and volley-ball, a Chess Club, and a Senior Citizens Club.

Library -- The Martinez Library is one of the sixteen branches of the Contra Costa Library system, established in 1913.

Museum -- The John Muir Home, built in 1881-82, is now a National Historic Site administered by the National Park Service. Also on the site is the historic Martinez Adobe.

Harbor Facilities -- Martinez has 270 acres of waterfront property. The new Marina now has 300 berths for small craft.

Related Recreational Facilities -- Because of the city's position near Suisun Bay and the Sacramento River Delta, excellent swimming and boating are available. Between Martinez, Lafayette, and Pleasant Hill is 3,100-acre Briones Park, and East Bay Regional Park, Contra Costa County's largest and newest park.

PLEASANT HILL

The city of Pleasant Hill occupies an area of five square miles in the Diablo Valley. It once consisted of mildly rolling range hillside, with native oaks, orchard lands, grain bottom land, and truck farms.

Its location as a prospective city was established by the erection of a veterans' monument at the intersection of two major thoroughfares linking the quadrants of central Contra Costa County. Its name came from the one-room school that served the area.

Two subdivisions of moderately priced homes were started in the housing boom of World War II, to meet the living needs of employees in war industries in the area. These were planned to be parts of a self-contained community with its own water system, shopping districts, and controlled traffic patterns.

By 1960, these and newer subdivisions had become an important housing area between the older communities of Concord and Walnut Creek. Foreseeing annexation, local business men and community leaders began work on incorporation, which was achieved in 1961, as a city manager-council city with basic overall planning to continue its development as a non-property-taxed, light industry, and commercial center, residential area.

Population at the time of incorporation was 24,000. In 1967, it was 27,000, composed primarily of young families originally employed in local agriculture but more recently in Bay Area businesses and industries.

Approximately 2/3 of the working population commutes to the Bay Area for their employment. The other third is employed locally. The only unemployment problem is with youth, and the Youth Commission is attempting to meet this by finding jobs in baby sitting and odd jobs for youth.

Housing is typically bedroom-suburban. There are no slums. The average home value is $24,000. Total assessed valuation $43,000,000.

Nearly 30% of the city is still undeveloped, with the planned addition of several subdivisions within the incorporated area. The General Plan calls for limited multiple residential areas to surround the business area.

Pleasant Hill is a general law city. Under state law it may pass and enforce ordinances, collect and disburse monies, and provide for the safety and civic welfare of its citizens. Its limits are mainly those set by the state and county. It operates as a council-manager city.

CITY OFFICES

The city offices of Pleasant Hill are located at 3300 North Main Street; Telephone 934-6050.

ELECTED OFFICIALS

The Council, composed of five councilmen, elected at large, for overlapping four-year terms, has administrative and policy-making responsibility. It elects one of its members to serve as mayor. Members receive a salary for their services.

The Council holds monthly, open meetings. It is responsible for law enforcement, approval of contracts, and adoption of the annual budget. It decides zone changes, variances, annexations, and special assessment districts, and holds required public hearings.

The City Clerk is elected at large for a four-year term. He records proceedings of all Council meetings, maintains custody of city records, certifies copies of records and official papers, administers oaths and affirmations, conducts municipal elections, and has custody of the city seal.

APPOINTED OFFICIALS AND COMMISSIONS

The City Manager is appointed by the Council and is responsible to it. He is head of the administrative branch and exercises administrative control over city departments, implements Council policies, prepares the annual budget, conducts studies, prepares reports required by the Council.

The City Treasurer heads the Finance Department and is accountable to the Council for all monies of the city. He is responsible for receiving and keeping incoming monies and disbursing funds only upon warrants signed by legally designated persons.

Official advisory boards include the seven-member Planning Commission, appointed by the Council and responsible to it, Architectural Review Commission, Sign Review Commission, Youth Commission, Community Development Commission, Gregory Gardens Water Advisory Commission, and Diablo Vista Water System Advisory Commission. The members of the Planning Commission and of the Architectural Review Commission are paid for their services: the former $15.00 per meeting, the latter $5.00 per meeting.

SERVICES: CITY DEPARTMENTS AND UTILITIES

Pleasant Hill contracts a few municipal services. Fire protection is furnished by a Consolidated Fire District, with a fire house, an engine, and a pumper in the city limits. It also contracts with the county for police, and plans to establish a city police department in 1970. There are no municipal court or jail facilities. All offenders are referred to county structures for detention and courts. Juveniles are held in County Juvenile Hall. Traffic offenders appear in the Mt. Diablo municipal court, located in Concord. Traffic studies and traffic safety are under the departments of Public Works and Public Safety.

WALNUT CREEK

The first house in what is now Walnut Creek was built in 1849. The first commercial development, a hotel and store called "Walnut Creek House", was built in 1855, and the first school in 1857. In 1860, the community called "The Corners", was officially named Walnut Creek and a post office was established in town. The first church, Methodist, was dedicated in 1872. Real estate developers, attracted to the area, acquired property and developed a subdivision, followed a year later by a second. In agriculture there was a shift from wheat to orchard farming, and fruit and walnut trees were planted. The first Walnut Festival was held in 1911.

In 1878, the Central Pacific Railroad built a line from Tracy to Oakland via Antioch and Martinez; in 1891, the Southern Pacific inaugurated service to Walnut Creek; and in 1909, the Oakland and Antioch Railway Company organized a commuter line to the Bay Area. By March 1913, regular passenger and freight service was offered between Walnut Creek and Oakland via a newly completed tunnel connecting Redwood and Shepherd Canyons.

Incorporation was accomplished October 21, 1914. The Caldecott Tunnel was completed in 1937, and this and the Bay Bridge made San Francisco an acceptable commute distance from Walnut Creek.

The incorporated area of Walnut Creek contains 33,850 people, while the postal district serves 69,993. There are 43,618 telephones, and 12,254 students are enrolled in the schools. The average annual net income is $12,500 per family.

Rossmoor, a cooperative housing community for adults, is located on approximately 2,000 acres in the city. As of November 1968, 3,327 units had been constructed and there were 5,507 residents. When completed it will have 10,000 units and 17,000 residents.

CITY OFFICES

The city offices of Walnut Creek are located at 1445 Civic Drive, Telephone 935-3300.

Walnut Creek is a general law city. It operates under a council-manager form of government, adopted in 1956.

ELECTED OFFICIALS

The Council, composed of five councilmen elected at large for overlapping four-year terms, has administrative and policy-making responsibility. It elects one of its members to serve as mayor. Members receive a nominal salary for their services.

The Council meets twice monthly, at 8:00 p.m. on the first and third Mondays, in City Hall. It establishes local law, sets policy, rejects or approves programs, appropriates funds, establishes the tax rate, and supervises operations of city government through its city manager.

The City Clerk is elected for a four-year term and performs the duties prescribed by the general laws of the state. She also serves as Finance Director, responsible to the City Manager. She is responsible for financial planning, accounting and auditing, revenue administration, and the billing and collecting of taxes, special assessments, and service charges for the city. She provides principal assistance to the City Manager in the preparation of his annual budget and gives advice to the City Manager and other officials on financial problems.

The City Treasurer is elected for a four-year term and performs the duties prescribed by general laws of the state.

APPOINTED OFFICIALS AND COMMISSIONS

The City Manager is appointed by the Council, by a majority vote of all members, for an indefinite term. He is chosen on the basis of administrative and executive ability.

He serves as administrative head of the city. He advises Council and directs the daily operations of city government, is responsible for law enforcement, for budget preparation, and for general supervision over all privately-owned utilities in the city. He controls purchasing of city supplies, prepares plans and specifications, and coordinates work of personnel administration. He is responsible for the appointment and dismissal, with approval of Council, of the Chief of Police, Director of Public Works, Director of Finance, Director of Parks and Recreation, Planning Director, and Director of Civic Arts.

Advisory boards and commissions, appointed by the Council for four-year staggered terms, composed of seven members each, who serve without compensation, include:

The Civic Arts Commission prepares, adopts, and recommends to Council plans for all phases of art and cultural activities.

The Parks and Recreation Commission prepares, adopts, and recommends to Council long-range plans for park and recreational development within the city.

The Planning Commission is advisory only except as otherwise provided by state law. It prepares, adopts, and recommends to Council for adoption long-range plans to guide future physical development of the city, and recommends to Council reasonable and practical means for putting plans into effect. A three-member subcommittee, the Board of Zoning Adjustments, handles exceptions and adjustments to zoning regulations and special permits involving land use.

UNINCORPORATED AREAS

Cowell

Cowell was begun as a company town for workers in the Cowell Cement Company and remained much the same from 1908 until the company closed during World War II. Residents had to find work elsewhere and many moved away. There was a two-room schoolhouse in Cowell until 1949, at which time it became part of the Mt. Diablo Unified School District. The schoolhouse was then used as a little theater until it burned down. There is now an agricultural extension office in Cowell along with small industrial establishments and an art gallery. The suburban towns of Concord and Clayton now come up to the edge of the old town.

Diablo

Diablo was begun as a country club and area of country homes in the early years of the twentieth century on land once owned by John Marsh's daughter and her husband. Some homes today are older homes built as country homes of wealthy families, but the area also has new homes. The country atmosphere is preserved with large lots and spacious houses. A small post office and the Diablo Country Club are the only "business" establishments.

Moraga

Traditionally, Moraga has been primarily a ranching and farming community. In 1835 the Moraga family received a land grant from the Mexican government for services rendered in the Mexican army. This land grant, called Rancho Laguna de los Palos Colorados, not only included the present day communities of Moraga and Rheem but also parts of Orinda, Lafayette, and Redwood Canyon. When the Moragas came to settle on their grant, they made friends with the Indians of the Acalanes tribe who inhabited this area at that time.

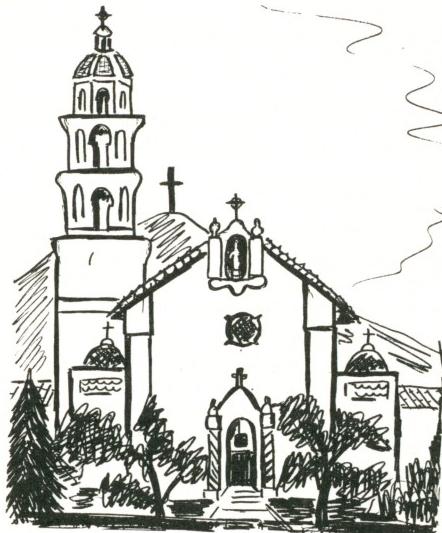

Early attempts to develop the area failed. However, in 1928, St. Mary's College under the direction of the Christian Brothers moved to Moraga. In the last fifteen years Moraga has experienced a sudden growth spurt marked by the appearance of many new housing developments.

Today Moraga is still a semi-agricultural community which serves mainly as a residential area for families whose heads are employed elsewhere in the Bay Area. Current population is 10,000 and this is expected to increase rapidly in the future.

Being an unincorporated community, Moraga is subject to government by the county Board of Supervisors and is served primarily by the special tax districts in the county.

Orinda

Orinda, like Moraga, is an unincorporated community situated on portions of the Rancho de Laguna de los Palos Colorados and of the Rancho El Sobrante, which were Mexican land grants to the Moraga and Castro families, respectively. In the 1920's, approximately 1,250 acres north of the present freeway were established as the townsite of Orinda. It was not until after the Caldecott Tunnel was opened in 1937 that the area really began to develop.

Orinda is primarily residential in nature and as such the majority of the family heads work in other areas of the Bay Area. In 1949 a zoning ordinance was passed which limits the size of building lots to a minimum of 1/2 acre, with the Crossroads and Village business districts reserved for business activities. Currently, the population is in excess of 18,000 and is on the increase.

Since Orinda is unincorporated, having failed to pass an incorporation bill in 1967, the civic affairs of the community are handled by a voluntary community improvement club known as the Orinda Association. Formed in 1946, the club provides liaison committees between the community and governmental authorities. Government of the area lies with the county Board of Supervisors. Most of the services in Orinda are provided by special county districts, a list of which follows.

Pacheco

Pacheco was originally part of the land called Rancho Monte del Diablo granted to Don Salvio Pacheco in 1834. During the 1850's the town was the principal shipping port of the county, but floods filled the sloughs with silt and forced abandonment of the port. Don Pacheco encouraged merchants to move to Concord and begin business there. Today Pacheco is a small residential and business community west of Concord and Diablo Valley College campus is on the hills behind the town.

Rheem

This town was part of the Moraga land grant. It remained exclusively rural in character until very recently when large land developers began building in this area. There is now a large shopping center here.

San Ramon Valley: Alamo, Danville, San Ramon

The fertile, softly rolling terrain and mild climate of San Ramon Valley were ideally suited to the leisurely agricultural pursuits of the Spanish settlers in the 19th century. This area, which encompasses the unincorporated towns of Alamo, Danville, Diablo and San Ramon, refers to this past in its motto: "old century leisure; new century convenience".

Dona Rafaela Soto de Pacheco received the Rancho San Ramon as a grant from the Spanish government in 1833. At about this time, the Bolgones tribe of Indians, the first known inhabitants of the Valley, were subdued by General Moraga. These Indians lived at the base of Mt. Diablo, and it was during their battles with the "white man" that the mountain became known to the soldiers as "Mount Devil". The Rancho San Ramon prospered with the planting of grain and care of livestock. In 1834 the ranch was granted to Jose Maria Amador by Governor Figueroa. The area continued to grow, and its farm lands became famous. Myron Hall introduced the soft-shell walnut industry in 1873. A bronze plaque commemorates this event and may be seen in the orchards on Jackson Way in Alamo. Walnuts, apples, pears and plums and superior wheat were the main crops in San Ramon until recent years.

The population of San Ramon Valley is now over 30,000. One would have trouble imagining that in 1852 there were only four houses between Alamo, the second oldest township in Contra Costa County, and the oldest, Martinez. Today, the people who work in close metropolitan cities, light industry and manufacturing facilities in the area have converted the farm lands to a modern suburbia. This was a major issue in a recent bid made by the area for incorporation. The residential area is now zoned for varying densities; the price of new homes ranges from $20,000 to over $50,000. There is fear that the semi-rural atmosphere now prevailing in the area will give way to the more economical advantages of industry and high density housing. However, the election failed, presumably because the voters did not feel willing to pay the additional taxes necessary to influence the growth of the area more directly. Right now, there is no local government. San Ramon Valley is included in the Third Supervisorial District, which extends from Orinda on the west to Diablo on the east, from Alameda County line on the south to Martinez on the north.
